Social Communication

Includes skills related to social interaction, social cognition, and pragmatics (i.e. the use of language in a functional and socially appropriate manner). These skills are essential for developing relationships, understanding social situations, and maintaining friendships.

Social communication skills include starting conversations, taking turns, making relevant comments, asking appropriate questions, and using nonverbal communication (e.g. gestures, facial expressions).